

Vanessa Garcia
Phyllis Salsedo
RDG 091 College Preparatory Reading
Section 12329
Project Read Aloud Log

Session #2

Date: July 12, 2011

Time: 3:36 p.m.

Number of minutes you read: 30

What you read: Twenty-Three Tales by Tolstoy

How did the session go for you both?

It went well. As I was reading I would pause and ask Chantalle for the main idea. If she didn't know I would look for the supporting details and explain to her what the main idea is. I mentioned that the supporting details can lead you to the main idea. The details can help you figure out the main idea and it also important to understand what you are reading. It was not difficult for me to find the main idea, because I understood the paragraphs. In addition, there were enough supporting details.

Again we came across unfamiliar words and we did the same process from the previous session. The ending tied the whole story together and made us realize the overall meaning and purpose of the story.